Re-membering the Past, Present and Future

“Remember your creator in the days of your youth...” Ecclesiastes 12:1

What is your earliest memory? Do you have fond recollections of your childhood? I have vague memories of my first six years of life in South Korea. Much of my childhood amnesia probably has to do with the early stages of brain development – in which long-term memories are not recorded. Yet, I do have some reminiscences of my adolescent years. It is an odd mix of experiences: for example, accidentally dropping something valuable between several boulders, getting hit on the head by a rock, enjoying mint candies, and being carried piggyback by my parents after preschool.

By themselves, these memories do not amount to much. Consequently, as a teenager I struggled with my identity. I felt that I knew very little about my past. Since then I have tried to learn more about my family history and ethnic heritage. This endeavor has been part of my ongoing work of finding puzzle pieces. When I was asked in a group setting to describe a snapshot of my early childhood, I responded that I did not have one. Instead, my early childhood felt like a puzzle with very few pieces in place. Thus, my experience of remembering my past is a continuing effort to fill in the picture.

I believe the church also needs to remember the past: to know where we started millennia ago, how the spiritual journey has been traveled over centuries, what has happened over past decades in our specific context and to be aware of our recent years and months. After receiving the call to serve at Federated, yet before my family moved to Columbus, I had the opportunity to read through the commemorative centennial book for our church. It was inspiring to learn about the various ways that Federated Church has been serving the community. Just as encouraging has been learning about the lived history through personal visits. I would challenge all of our church members, especially our older adults to share from their wealth of experiences at Federated Church. It would be tragic for the memories of the past to be lost.

Along with remembering the past, we are to remember in the present tense. In our communion liturgy, we are instructed to partake of the elements (that is, bread and wine) “in remembrance” of Christ. While ‘to remember’ usually means ‘to bring to one’s mind’ (or ‘call to mind’ which is the literal translation of the Latin, rememorari), it can mean more than a mental activity. We are to “re-member” Christ in the sense that we reconnect as members of Christ’s body when we celebrate the Lord’s Supper. In other words, to re-member means to be reunited with Christ and God’s people.

As a church, we can re-member by striving for ways to be more connected. The fundamental way we are linked with one another and God is in worship. It is encouraging to see familiar yet new faces in our worship services. My hope is that we can grow more in worshipping God together. I am willing to help address any concerns that have hindered worship attendance, so please let me know what those concerns might be.

Another way we can better connect with one another is through small groups. Our Membership and Growth Committee has taken initiative in starting numerous small groups. Please take a look at the various opportunities to connect with others.

Lastly, I have been reminded of the vital work that churches are called to do in remembering for the future. Ecclesiastes 12:1 instructs us to remember God in our youthful days because it will be more difficult to do so with an increase of age and worries of life. With this in mind, I have encouraged our Children's Ministry and Youth Ministry teachers to think about ways we can help the children and youth in our care to form positive memories of church – and in turn, of God.

Based on statistics, it is probable that many of our young people will not as adults be connect to our church – or any church. Yet I have hope that fond memories of Federated Church will lead our young people to reconnect with a faith community – here or elsewhere. It is difficult to say what they will remember about growing up at Federated Church. For example, I was surprised to hear one of our recent confirmands share that his fondest memory of Sunday school was the petting zoo animals. With this in mind, our Christian Education Committee invited Horn T Zoo to bring their animals for our upcoming Education Hour Kick-Off on Sept. 8th. We will also have a free lunch prepared by our Youth Ministry Committee following worship that day.

Along with events and activities, our children and youth will remember the interactions they had with our adult members. Remembrances of being loved through encouraging words and kind deeds will make as much – if not more – of an impact in the lives of our young people.

By sharing God's love with one another, we can re-member the past, in the present and for the future.

Grace and peace,
Edward

Bell Controller

An update: Thank you to Federated members and friends for your memorial donations following Norry Augustin's death. Your generosity has provided the monies to repair and improve our church bell system whose sounds will one again enrich the downtown area. This project became a heartwarming reality through Marv Zoucha's ongoing passion, vision, and assistance with the contractor. So now to each of you, my family is very grateful as we sense Norry's smiles and appreciation of music in "making a joyful noise to the Lord". - Lee A.

A Note of Thanks

Dear Federated Church Family,

Thank you all for the memorials and notes. It is comforting to know how much (Lee) meant to so many people!

Sincerely Barb Hicks

Summer Mission Camp 2019

I have got to say, this year's mission trip has to be my most favorite out of all the mission trips I have been to. I enjoyed going together with other churches and getting to know others while working and having worship. This year's trip provided lots of amazing people, great worship leaders, and beautiful songs. In the morning we ate breakfast and got into a group so we can hear what each of us has to do for that day.

We would all pack lunches and head over to our worksites. After a couple of hours of working we had lunch. After that we went to work for a couple more hours then headed back to our cabins. Every night we had group games before getting together for worship.

I have got to be honest though, I hated working at the sites this year. But I worked through it and ended up feeling satisfied at what I had done. For Monday and Tuesday, I had to move sticks, logs, and rocks to one side so the people at the site can form a new hiking trail. On Wednesday I had to scrape old paint off of fences and cover them with a new layer of paint.

Finally, it was Thursday, our Sabbath day. This was my most favorite day because we could relax most of the day and just go out with friends to enjoy the beauty of God's creation in our surroundings. Thursday after lunch we got together and took pictures. After that we were invited to go tubing down a hill. We spent the last few hours with whoever we wanted to until we had to head back home. I felt really sad because I was going to miss all of the people I got to know and built a stronger relationship with the people I already knew. Before we left we had one more worship together and a small group session. I admit that I cried some tears before getting onto the bus back home.

From this year's mission trip, I learned that God will always hold me up and will never turn his back against me no matter how huge of a mistake I make. He will always help me to become the person that he has created me to be in this world.

I want to thank the congregation for helping our youth group to go to SMC 2019. I couldn't have felt so much closer to God if it wasn't for you all. I also wanted to thank the adults on this trip for helping as much as possible for us to be fully engaged and energized. I am hoping to go to SMC one more time during high school and to meet new people and learn what God wants to teach me.
